“the shame i win for singing is all mine, the gold i lose for dreaming is all yours.” robinson thus expresses our theme -- the spirit of youth. we strive not merely for a good im-

dedication to the one who

with his youthful vitality, friendliness, and understanding has made deep friends of all of us, we dedicate this book, the "Blue and Gold" of 1929—
to our principal,
Mr. M. Evan

principal's message

we believe that those who appear as graduates in this issue will leave us with the knowledge of a debt to this community which can be repaid only by a life of service to all mankind.

senior Class

▲ ▲ ▲ now that we are Seniors and have at last attained those heights to which we once gazed with awe and wonder, the Class of '29 looks backward to those first awkward days in West Seattle High.

As Freshmen, the class was given its start with Bob Thompson, president; Irene La Grave, vice-president; Ruth La Grave, secretary; and Ruth Morrell, treasurer. Mr. Lemmel consented to act as advisor, and ever since, he has been the spirit and "pep" leader of the class.

During the next year the class put on "A Case of Suspension," which proved a wonderful success. Many of those in the cast have since distinguished themselves by being foremost in the later dramatic offerings.

Toward the end of the Junior year a new election was held in which John Gilbert, president; Max Owsley, vice-president; Eleanor Banta, secretary; and Paul Duckwitz, treasurer, emerged victorious. These acted as Senior officers. The Senior Council consisted of Ray Camp, Sarahjane Paulson, Marny Collins, Nancy McFate, and Marjorie Rae.

The biggest event of the year was the Senior Play, "The Taming of the Shrew," which carried off all honors and shattered all records of attendance.

Mr. Lemmel

And now at leaving, our minds are mingled with thoughts of joy and regret—joy of having successfully reached our goal and regret at having to leave this place which has meant so much to us.

In former years every graduation class has had an underlying suspicion that the world has long been waiting for its entrance into its centers of business—this class is sure of it.

« blue & gold » commencement

▲ ▲ ▲ The theme of this year's Commencement program was "The Meaning of a High School Education." Rather than a summary of the student's formal education it was an interpretation of his growth through high school. "The Meaning of a High School Education" is, of course, a development of the Annual theme, "School Spirit," only in rather a different sense.

Bess Lowry, Salutatorian, touched upon the high school of a few generations ago. The speakers following each discussed a different phase of his growth in high school: Thurley Haga, "Work"; Max Owsley, "Leisure"; Don Hiatt, "An Appreciation"; Zoe Lund, "Tolerance," giving a definite example of school life and its relation to his subject. Stanley Gibson, Valedictorian, told something of the ideal school of the future.

The musical part of the program, under the direction of Mr. Behymer, was rather different. In place of the solos usually offered, several chorus numbers were given, including a great many more students upon the program. Deva Parrott gave a very lovely violin solo.

▲ ▲ ▲ This is the third big year for the Junior Class, and it has accomplished work for which it should feel proud. Under the leadership of Virgil Broughton as president; Tinker Johnson, vice-president; Millicent Biel, secretary, Lucille Gaches, treasurer; and Miss Clark, advisor, it has become known as one of the "peppiest" classes in school.

Many of its members have done outstanding work in music and dramatics. Andrew Vitaich, Helen Blalock, Elnora Halvorsen, Charlotte Hansen, Helen Beneker, and Ed Mutter took part in "The Marriage of Nannette." Those who appeared in "You and I," the Boys and Girls' Clubs play, are Jim Wilson, John Storey, Beth Watson, Jean Shaver, Mary Dean, and Virginia Robinson.

In the Honor Society the Junior Class is represented by thirty-eight members.

On the Chinook staff Max Canterbury was editor the first semester and business manager the second; Helen Beneker was news editor; Gladys Callahan was advertising manager; and Harold Replogle was managing editor.

Active parts were taken in athletics by the Junior boys. Don McClary and Delwin Muller made the first team in football. Virgil Broughton, Gifford Clemens, Dick Terpening, Ralph Lessinger, and Bill Stone were on the second. Loring McManus was on the first basketball team, while Don McClary, Delwin Muller, Virgil Broughton, Gordon Gray, and Alexander Stewart were on the second team.

Miss Clark

This year the Juniors gave a Christmas party. That it was one of the big successes of the year was largely due to the work of the social committee of Mary Dean, chairman, assisted by Millicent Beil.

lover's lament

I'm in love,
She's in love too,
But not with me,
She likes the other fellow better.

He has dark hair
And blue eyes,
And a car,
I haven't.

He can wisecrack
And make her laugh,
And can dance wonderfully,
I can't.

He plays football,
And wears two stripes.
But me—I'm just a poor dub
That's trying to write poetry.

Howard Doherty

SNOW

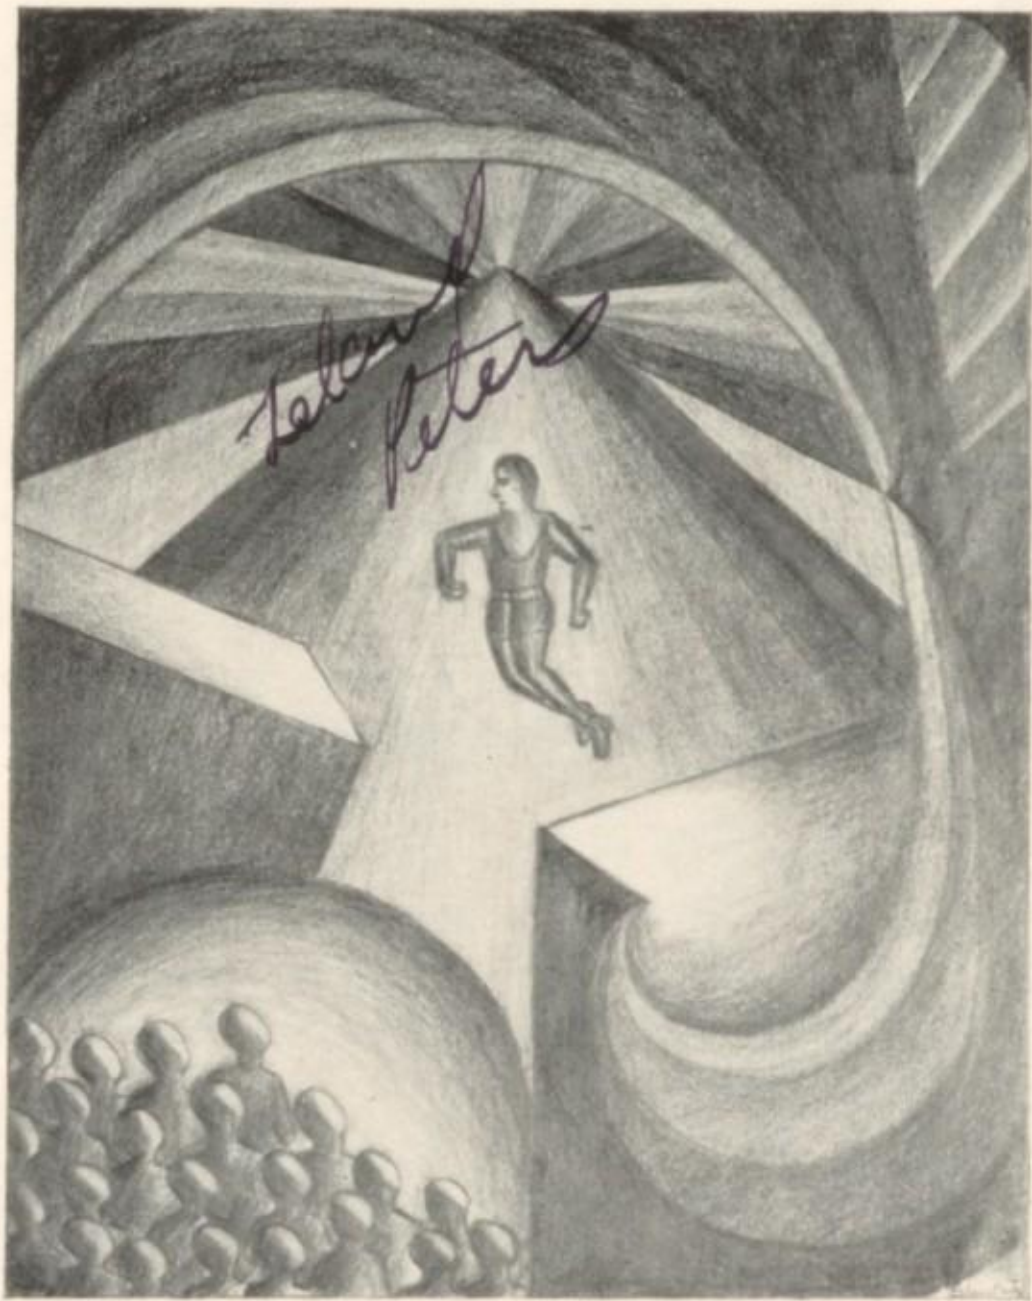

It was so vast the snow,
On that mountain, up so high
And piled so deep.
The dazzling clearness
Frightened and relieved me.
It was so vast too great
For my humble ease.
But then I wasn't left alone
With all its greatness
The others were always near.
This helped me, not to feel
Too much
Not to be altogether crowded
By its vastness.
The earth was far beneath
. . . . Almost forgotten.
I felt I didn't have any right
To be lifted up so high
Where all the earth was covered up.
But I stepped lightly
So as not to make too deep a mark
On that clean snow.
Its whiteness helped me to feel clean.
But what right had I with all my thoughts
To leave my imprint on its whiteness?

sophomore ▲ ▲ class ▲ ▲

▲ ▲ ▲ The Sophomores began their second year at West Seattle full of "pep" and school spirit and ended it feeling that much worth while had been accomplished. Their leaders were Forrest Reike, president; Ira Scribner, vice-president; Fred Collins, secretary-treasurer; and Miss Ford, faculty advisor.

They have enthusiastically entered into every phase of school activity. Many Sophomores took part in the Opera, and the class had the unusual honor of having one of its members, Nell Frances Wilcox, play the lead.

In scholarship, too, they ranked high, for sixty-five of the Honor Society members are Sophomores.

In sports, Miss Tozier says the girls' teams have given the Juniors and Seniors hard battles for every victory they have won, and she is expecting several championship teams from them in the next two years. The boys, too, have done outstanding work in sports, and we may be sure that they will furnish remarkable material for the first teams.

Miss Ford

One of the greatest accomplishments of the class was the Sophomore party given in December. Its program, consisting of musical numbers, dances, a pantomime, and a one-act play, would be a credit to any class.

The Sophomores are now ready to step into their places as upperclassmen and carry on their fine work.

I've never ridden horseback
But I know how it must feel—
The quivering flesh against my knees,
The smooth saddle,
The swinging stirrups,
The wind in my hair;
The steady jogging,
The joyous freedom
Of a swift run across the plains.
I know it all.
The gentle whinny of a horse that loves its mistress.
His cold nose in my hand,
His restless feet
Pawing the ground in an eagerness to be off.
I know the joys of the saddle—
I dream of riding horseback
And I love it,
For I know how it must feel.

freshman class

▲ ▲ ▲ Last September the class of 1932 entered seven hundred and thirty-two strong, the largest Freshman class in the history of the West Seattle High School. Their "greenness" was more than offset by their show of "pep" and enthusiasm. In school spirit they are outstanding, and their loyalty to their recently adopted Alma Mater has been demonstrated by their willingness to enter every extra curricular activity to which they are eligible. They made a splendid showing in debate, dramatics, art, music, and all phases of Boys and Girls' Clubs work.

Early last fall an enthusiastic class meeting was held in the auditorium by their newly appointed advisor, Mrs. Chamberlen. The following officers were elected to serve for the school year:

President	Tom Gilbert	Treasurer	Ruth Phelps
Vice-President	Bill Morse	Boys' Representative	John Hardy
Secretary	Al Tennant	Girls' Representative	Jean Whaley

During March of the spring semester a special election was held, electing Pauline Rafferty to succeed Tom Gilbert as class president.

Mrs. Chamberlen

On February 15 a Valentine party was given in the auditorium after school to which the January entering Freshmen were invited as special guests. An interesting musical and dramatic program was given after which lollypops were distributed to the members of the class and their guests. Because of the vast amount of talent that this program revealed, the school can look for many interesting entertainments throughout the school career of this promising young class of 1932.

student council

▲ ▲ ▲ though only in its second year, the Student Council is now a well established organization of West Seattle High School. The willingness of the student body to support the work of the Council was shown when the students overwhelmingly voted down a proposal that the Locker Code be abolished.

With its new advisor, Mr. Morgan, the Council has slightly altered its policies but is still proceeding in the same conservative course outlined by its organizer, Mr. Frazier.

The Council committees performed their work in a creditable manner. Elinor March and Dick Terpening were joint chairmen of the Locker committee; Bob Mumford and John Dickson, chairmen of the Corridor committee, and Max Canterbury, chairman of the Auditorium committee.

annual staff

▲ ▲ ▲ theme — Modern, or not to be, that is the question; or even Futuristic; of course not Medieval; and what about it, should we give the Juniors as much space as the indispensable Seniors? Would the eager Freshmen object and would the Seniors even yield to it?

It's up to the Annual Staff to find out the queer likes and dislikes of the pupils and to inform the photographer that we must be made beautiful, so we won't have to say, "It's good of you but terrible of me."

Being on the Annual Staff and catering to all the students is a touchy business.

▲ girls' ▲ association

▲ ▲ ▲ The Girls' Association of West Seattle has a specific purpose, and that is to create a feeling of friendliness and goodwill among all the girls and to bring them into close contact with each other. This association, which includes every girl in school, accomplishes this purpose by upholding the high ideals and standards set forth by its creed and by the numerous assemblies given for the girls throughout the year.

All activities of the Girls' Association are carried on by the Cabinet, Miss Mabel Chilberg, girls' advisor, and the heads and members of the four following departments: Social Service, Entertainment, Vocational, and Personal Efficiency.

The Social Service Department, with Miss Ackley and Miss Conrad as sponsors, and Dorothea Maxwell as chairman, is very busy in the work of helping others. It is divided into the following committees:

Miss Chilberg

The Fairy Godmothers' Guild entertains the children at the Day Nursery once a week with games and stories; the Jacks-of-All-Trades and the Toy Makers' Guild work especially hard at Thanksgiving and Christmas to help others. The Friendship Committee and the Garden Guild write and send flowers to girls who are ill.

◀ blue & gold ▶

The Guild of the Needleites does a great deal in making clothes for children.

The Entertainment Department, advised by Miss Sundling, and whose chairman is Lorraine Donker, plays a great part in creating friendships among the girls. The parties given by this department especially help to strengthen these friendships. This department consists of the following committees: Hospitality Committee, which acts as hostess to girls from other schools who come as guests to our parties, Music, Refreshment, P. T. A., Mothers' Tea, Invitations, Publicity, Decoration, Senior Farewell, Drama, and Games. Some of the committees work on each affair given, while others function only once.

The Vocational Department, with Miss Dunn as sponsor and Katherine Gillam as chairman, deals mainly with the giving of information concerning vocations. The following committees do work which will help them in the future: Abilities Committee, which lists and files the talents of all girls in school for the use of the Entertainment Committee and different organizations; the Clerical Committee, which takes care of work in the study hall and the apartment; Minute Girls, for Freshman girls alone; and Relations to Grade Schools Committee, which prepares oral and written information for the incoming Freshman girls about the different high school activities. The Preparation Committee gives information on various college requirements. The Opportunities Committee gives talks on vocations. This department also has a publicity committee.

The Personal Efficiency Department, with Miss Roll, sponsor, and Millicent Biel, chairman, is concerned with making each girl personally efficient. It is assisted in bringing this about by the following committees: Standards Committee, which tries to raise the standards and ideals of high school girls; the Health Committee, the purpose of which is to arouse the interest of all high school students in healthful living; the Grades Committee for girls interested in coaching other students who have difficulties in certain subjects; the Points System; Lockers; Personal Discussion; Thought-A-Day; and Big Sisters to Freshman Girls.

The Girls' Association also has a Lost and Found Department. This department is under the supervision of Miss Hummel, with Ruth Grant as chairman. Its work, as its name implies, is to take care of the lost articles that are found. This department is in charge of different girls before and after school and during the three lunch periods.

West Seattle's Girls' Association this year was appointed head of the All-City Vocational Committee at the All-City Girls' Club Conference, held at the first of the school year.

boys' club

▲ ▲ ▲ The promotion of Christian Citizenship, true sportsmanship, better cooperation, and a more wholesome school spirit has been the fundamental goal towards which the Boys' Club has directed its activities during the past year. It is this purpose, coupled with its earnest desire to answer the problems of adolescence and to guide the boy in his character development that have made it an invaluable link in the school's organization.

On entering the high school every boy automatically becomes a member of the Club. There are no dues. Elections are held the second week in May, and the new officers are installed before the close of the school year. All nominations for offices are made by petition.

This year's officers were: President, John Gilbert; Vice-President, Virgil Broughton; Secretary-Treasurer, Don McClary. These three officers, with Mr. Lemmel, the Boys' Advisor, become members of the Student Council under the new constitution, which was adopted this year.

Activities sponsored by the Club this year were the Boys' and Girls' Clubs play, "You and I," the Archery Club, and the Motor Squad.

Special assemblies were arranged so that the boys could come in closer contact with different men and their views on various subjects.

Although the school has grown much larger and the problems of the Boys' Club more complicated, the club has to a very great extent fulfilled its purpose with splendid success and is recognized as a big factor in the life of every boy in high school.

honor society

▲ ▲ ▲ before an organization or society becomes progressive and active, there must first be an ideal—a purpose for its being. The aim of the Honor Society is “the encouragement and reward of high attainment on the part of the students in the matters of scholarship, leadership, service, and character development.”

With the organization's rapid growth its activities have expanded, and its effectiveness has been strengthened. Honor Society members are found in every participating school organization.

It is an incentive to its members to give up their time more unselfishly for the advancement of the school's program. They have given their study periods to work in the office and have also ushered at school performances.

Plans are now being made to give an Honor Society banquet which will be financed by the society.

The officers who have assisted Miss Pierce in this year's course are Stanley Gibson, president; Ruth Allen, vice-president; and Clarice Weidert, secretary-treasurer.

aviation club

▲ ▲ ▲ The first year of the Aviation Club at West Seattle High School has been a very successful one. Mr. Morgan opened the first meeting by telling of some of the interesting experiences he had while in the Army Air Service and how such a club as ours could be of help to its members. Other talks during the year were: "Controls" by Mr. Robert Aiken of Sand Point Flying Field; "Gas Engines" by Mr. Lemmel (illustrated); and "Freshman Engineering" by Mr. Joseph W. Lang of the University of Washington. The last talk was "Development of Aircraft Engines" by Mr. Whaley.

The Club has several shelves in the library which are filled with Aviation Magazines for the use of the members. Two Aviation books were given to the library by Elizabeth Boggs, "Modern Aircraft" by Major Page and "Skyward" by Commander Byrd.

The officers for the winter semester were: Elizabeth Boggs, president; Gordon Young, vice-president; Barbara Stevens, secretary-treasurer; and John Clyde, research secretary. In the spring semester Gordon Young became president. Mr. Gorton has served as an excellent sponsor. His help has been much appreciated by the club.

◀ blue & gold ▶

french club

▲ ▲ ▲ This club was organized to enable the students to learn more about France, its language, customs, and people, an intensive study of which is not possible in class. Anyone who has taken two years of French or is now taking the subject is admitted to membership in this organization.

Two programs of importance were presented this semester, one, the play "Pauvre Sylvie," which was given in the assembly, and the Christmas party given in the music room. At the first meeting Elizabeth Lenox gave a very interesting account of her stay in Paris.

Many students of the French IV, V, and VI classes are carrying on correspondence with students in France. This is very interesting as well as profitable for all concerned.

Meetings are held monthly under the leadership of Miss Shelton and Virginia Robertson, president; Elizabeth Lenox, vice president; Mildred Robertson, secretary; and John Storey, treasurer; and for the second semester: president, Lola May Van Horn; vice-president, Pauline Smith; secretary, Mildred Robertson; and treasurer, Joe Kent.

The club plans to use a part of its funds to send to Paris for several French books, which should prove valuable additions to our high school library.

◀ blue & gold ▶

latin club

▲ ▲ ▲ The "Sodales Romani" has progressed very successfully this year, its second year since reorganization. It has over one hundred members, most of whom are enrolled in Latin now.

The Magistrates included: Consuls, Audrey Pratt and George Lipsky; Scriba, Ruth Hedman; Quaestor, Maxine Bruton. Marjorie Call and Luella Kinnan were chairmen of the program committee.

Much credit is due Miss Hummel, Censor, for the splendid support she has given this organization.

The object of this club is to stimulate interest in the subject of Latin and to study the life and customs of the Roman people. These objectives have been followed in the preparation of the monthly programs, one of which presented a very interesting Vestal Virgin Drill. In February, a Valentine party was held.

In April came the biggest event of the year—a Roman festival. Separate programs by Miss Hummels and Mrs. Baeder's classes were given. There were several musical numbers, including a violin solo by Clarice Weidert; and poets read their verses as they did in Roman days. The committee who planned the festival and wrote the plays was composed of Vivian McDermid, Ruth Dougherty, Bess Lowry, Mary Elizabeth Luppold, Frances Farmer, and Jane Iles.

spanish club

▲ ▲ ▲ The Spanish Club, La Tertulia, has progressed under the able leadership of its officers: Johnny Pearce, president; Helen Beneker, vice-president; Carolee Wiseman, secretary; Gordon Young, treasurer; G. B. Smith, faculty sponsor; and its group of class representatives: Ruby Coates, Margery Davies, Dorothy Driscoll, Max Edwards, Edythe Ginger, Jess Lee, and John Witzke.

Throughout the year the club has held several well attended meetings and parties. These affairs consisted of Spanish plays, musical selections, games, and, of course, a goodly supply of refreshments. Of special interest was a meeting devoted to Spain. Several talks were given and illustrated by beautifully colored views of Spain. Several interesting contests were also held.

In May the club united with the Stamp Club and presented a very creditable vodvil show in the auditorium. The Spanish Club Vodvil has come to be a looked for event. It was well attended, and the receipts from ticket sales provided additional funds for the purchase of books, periodicals, and interesting curiosities from Spanish speaking lands. The Spanish Club library now numbers nearly fifty volumes.

Naturally, the purpose of La Tertulia is to create and foster an interest in the Spanish language and the customs and people of Spanish-speaking countries. With so many pupils interested in its activities, La Tertulia has succeeded in its purpose and hopes to achieve more and more each year.

▲ ▲ “a”ny stamps to trade today?”

“What is the rarest stamp in existence?”

“Who knows the meaning of Guyane Francaise?”

“Where is Lithuania?”

“Did you see the article about King George of England? His favorite hobby is stamp collecting, and he is a sure authority on British stamps.”

This is only an example of the many conversations that take place during the regular Wednesday meetings of the Stamp Club in room 211.

After several years of inactivity a few but enthusiastic pupils of our school have revived the Stamp Club. Its purpose is to create and further the interest of stamp collecting in West Seattle High School. Membership is open to anyone with a stamp collection.

This year the club has sponsored many interesting stamp contests and exhibits. In April it united with the Spanish Club and contributed several numbers in a big vodvil show.

The club has been under the advisorship of Mr. G. B. Smith with the following officers:

President, Kenneth Hastings

Vice-President, Stanley Gibson

Secretary-Treasurer, Ruth Way.

But, of course, football tickets aren’t the only type of pasteboard sold by the Squad, as they sell not only admissions to all sporting events such as football, basketball, and baseball but also tickets to all public functions such as the Senior play and the Opera.

During the year 1928-29, the Squad consisted of thirteen members: Al Kelly, Ed Garrison, Conrad Knutsen, Erling Eastgard, Walter Sargent, Conwell Ehret, Dick MacMorran, Carl Winqvist, Ed Argersinger, and Howard Doherty. Samuel Mohler was manager, and Dan Closser and Jim Davis were his assistants. Mr. Larson acted as faculty sponsor.

In the football season the Squad managed two games at the Auditorium and sold tickets for the rest. They had charge of the ticket sales for the Senior play, the Opera, and the Boys and Girls’ Clubs play. During the basketball season they took charge of the games at home both by selling tickets and by acting as ushers.

The lively love scenes, the humorous characters, and the snappy presentation kept the audience in an uproar during the two nights of the play.

The Senior Class is very grateful to those who have helped with the production—to Miss Allen and Miss Bachman for the costume contruction; to Miss Donaldson and Miss Puymbroeck for the costume design and stage settings—to Mr. Welch for the stage construction—to Mr. Gorton for the lettering—to Miss Pierce for the ushers—to Mr. Larson for the tickets—to Mr. Behymer for the music—to Miss Olson and Miss Christensen for the make-up—to Mrs. Baeder for the business—and to Mr. Hannaford and the stage crew—but most of all, to Miss Margaret Akin, whose excellent direction and efforts made this the biggest event of the school year.

“you and I” was the name of the three-act comedy presented by the Boys and Girls' Clubs this year. This is the second time in the history of West Seattle High School that the clubs have united in giving a three-act play.

The play was successfully coached by Miss Babcock. Miss Loughhead and Mr. Lemmel assisted during some of the rehearsals. Miss Chilberg and Mr. Thorsett were the managers.

There was so much talent shown at the tryouts that it took a lot of time to decide on the final cast. The following persons were chosen:

The Dramatic Club is an "up and coming" organization which puts on several one-act plays each year.

The plays produced during the school year, '28 and '29, were: "The Master Salesman" by William Upson, "The Lost Silk Hat" by Lord Dunsany, "The Ghost Story" by Booth Tarkington, "Spaghetti Italian" by Kathryn Hayes, "The Pot Boiler" by Alice Gerstenberg, "The Decimal Point" by Anna Best Joder, and "The Kelly Kid" by Dan Totheroh and Kathleen Norris.

The plays were all coached by students under the supervision of Miss Babcock, sponsor.

stage crew

▲ ▲ ▲ the Stage Crew, under the direction of Mr. Hannaford, has accomplished more in the year 1928-29 than in any former year, working under stricter rules and better conditions.

Before any production can be given, the crew must be behind it. All work done on the stage is done by this small cooperative group. Much more credit than can be imagined is due the Stage Crew for the artistic and efficient results that it produces, especially shown in the Senior Play and the Opera.

Many new improvements have been made this year: new electrical equipment, new curtains, new cabinets—which have been made possible by the money received from the productions. The crew is working to make the stage one of the best equipped in the city.

Different committees have been formed: carpentry, electrical, loft, property, costumes, sewing, and cleaning.

The crew consists of Gordon Clothier, manager; Carl Schoenfeld, Rupert Hawley, Ed Graudin, Bob Healy, Margaret Mahl, Beth Blaine, Dot Butler, Katherine Hyslop, Chy Leivers, Hazel Mahl, Homer Wolfe, Ed Chandler, Bob Clark, and Bert Gustavson.

A song, a laugh, and a password were adopted by this group: "Sweet Adeline," the song, and "Whoopee," the password.

art club

▲ ▲ ▲ I've actually ruined my reputation for laziness by joining this Art Club. I suppose I could have sat around and let other people do the work, but they seemed to be having fun, so I tried it, and it's the best kind of fun messing around with scenery and whatnot.

We designed and executed (wot I mean) the sets for the Senior play and Opera and Boys and Girls' Clubs play. And we did most of the costumes for these performances. They were more'n snazzy; they were intriguing!

But we artists are versatile people, so we had a Revue in Honor of St. Valentine himself. It was called the 'Eart Idea. Was it good? And how. The cream of the talent in while-u-wait sculptors and cartoonists and near-opera singers and dancers that would make poor Pavlowa green with envy!

Just to prove that we were real artists, we held a loan exhibit for "Back to School Night." There were just scads of things from all over the world—gorgeous Mandarin robes, Spanish mantillas—in fact, everything that anybody's aunt sent from anywhere.

So here's to the Art Club — may Success be its middle name.

music

Under the excellent direction of Mr. Behymer the Music department increased greatly this year.

The faculty and students welcomed a new music teacher, Miss Coyne, to the department. Under her management, the Junior glee clubs and orchestra were organized. They combined in an all-music assembly.

An opera, "The Marriage of Nannette," was the feature of this year's musical career. The Senior boys and girls' glee clubs, accompanied by the Senior orchestra, with Helen Blalock, Nell Frances Wilcox, and Fred Mutter carrying the leads, made up the opera, directed by Mr. Behymer. It was an artistic and financial success, being an all-student production.

The Senior orchestra, composed of fifty members, in February played at the Chamber of Commerce and broadcasted, and were presented at a recital given under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Music Clubs. The final concert was given in May in the form of a festival.

It is hoped West Seattle High School's music department will continue to develop as it has throughout the preceding year.

▲ ▲ Starting with only two veterans on the team, the West Seattle Indians finished in third place, the surprise eleven of the city.

Mr. Brinck

To Coach Brinck, "The Miracle Man," goes the credit, as he had very little material at the beginning of the season and finished so successfully.

Rated as the weakest team in the league, the Redskins upset the dope in the very first game, defeating Ballard 6-0 in a sea of mud.

Not content with this, the Indians walloped Cleveland 40-0, with Johnny Gilbert running wild.

The Broadway "Tigers" were next with their eleven veterans from the year before. The Redskins fought their hearts out to a 13-13 tie.

Had it not been for McClary in the Lincoln game the Indians would have tied another game, but in the last quarter the West Side tackle scooped up a fumble and raced forty-five yards to a touchdown.

Then came the big game with Garfield. Here the Redskins bit the dust, and the Bulldogs emerged victorious with the score 13-0.

In the last game of the season the Indians came out of the fray with the short end of the score, in which the Franklin Quakers won a hard-fought game, 7-0.

West Seattle placed two men on the all-city team: Captain Johnny Gilbert, half-back, and Bobby Boyd, center. These two well deserved the recognition.

There will be only three regulars returning for the coming fall. They are McClary, Muller, and Collins.

Mr. Brinck

Although the dope was against them, the Redskins outfought Queen Anne in the first game, McManus' shot from the middle of the floor in the last minute of play winning the game 15-13.

According to tradition, the Ballard Beavers won on their own floor, 27 to 21. This is in keeping with the year that the Redskins won the championship, in which the only game lost was to Ballard on its home floor. The Redskins haven't won a game on the Beavers' home floor since.

At home the strong Lincoln Railsplitters nosed out the Indians in the closing minutes of a fast game, 21 to 17, with Harry Givan, stellar Lynx guard, leading the attack.

Unable to penetrate Roosevelt's five man defense, the Teddies took the Redskin scalp to the tune of 33 to 11.

Again the Indians were defeated, this time by Franklin. The Quakers with Nichols, all-city guard, beat the West Siders 44 to 25.

Snapping out of their slump, the Redskins journeyed to Garfield and trounced the Bulldogs 25 to 21. This was one of the most thrilling games of the season, owing to the fact that it was the closest.

West Seattle won the next game from Broadway 20-17 in a rough tussle in the closing minutes of the game.

Fighting for a chance in the play-off, the Braves beat Cleveland on its own floor in the most exciting game of the season with the score of 17 to 14.

The three team play-off was held on the Lincoln floor. Queen Anne nosed out the Indians 5-2 in a hard fought tussle in which the Redskins fought their hearts out.

◀ blue & gold ▶

The Broadway quintet pulled a surprise and beat the West Siders 26-25 in the next game.

In the final game the Indians did themselves justice, trouncing Ballard 30 -20.

Those winning first team letters were: Captain Bobby Boyd, center; Bob Thompson, Vance Humes, and Bill Knell, forwards; and Paul Paschke, Loring McManus, and Ed Nokes, guards.

Coach Brinck deserves special credit because the Indians finished very creditably considering the pre-season dope.

The material for next year promises to be good. The Indians had the smallest squad in the city but proved to the fans that even small men can be good at basketball.

▲ ▲ ▲ although losing only three games during the 1928 baseball season, West Seattle was forced to share first with Garfield.

In the season's last game the Bulldogs tackled the Indians, needing a win in order to share first place. West Seattle lost and was forced to concede Garfield half the glory. An eleven-inning thriller with Queen Anne and another to Garfield were the other blotches on the Braves' record.

The battery—Bill Gourlay, All-City chucker, and Harold Sweet—did much for the champs; though little could have been done without Birklund, Paschke, and Knott, infielders, and Ed Nokes, outfielder.

At present the 1929 aggregation has played only three games. West Seattle dedicated the Civic Auditorium field with a win over Cleveland in a pitchers' battle.

Inability to retain a two-run lead lost the Queen Anne game. Poor baserunning was a factor in the defeat.

The Redskins wreaked vengeance on Garfield when they won 4 to 3 in a hard-hitting, multi-muffed affair.

Paschke's fielding and Grey's hitting are bright spots at present. Carlson, with little mound experience, has earned a lot of praise. Nokes and Birklund's work at the plate have also caused favorable criticism. Gunderson has been capably handling Carlson's heaves.

The team stacks up with Carlson and Gunderson, batteries; Gray, Paschke, and Nokes, infielders; while Morse, Covich, and Vollen patrol the garden. Gravem, O'Neill, McManus, Argersinger, Broughton, McCreary, Abener, and Smith are also expected to see action before the season ends.

The success of the season, according to Coach Anderson, depends upon the team's defensive work.

▲ ▲ ▲ Those who had participated in the golf matches up to the time the "Blue and Gold" went to press were Gordon McRae, Vernon Thatcher, Silius Ranta, Bob Kem, Holman Kem, Harold Smith, Ed Argersinger, and Bob Thompson.

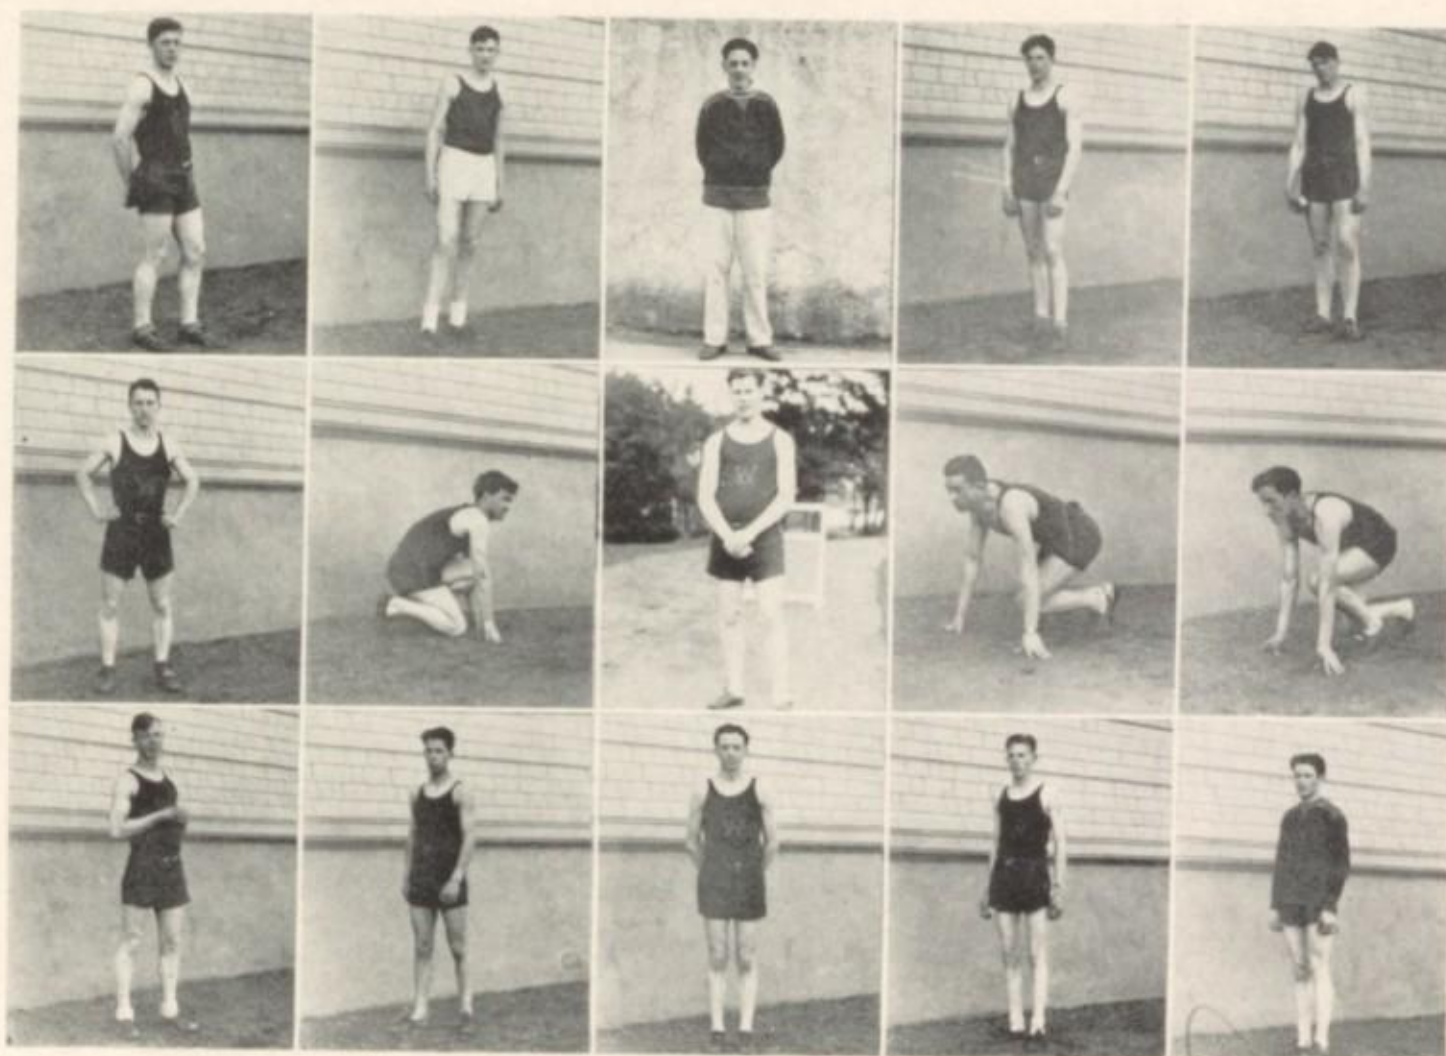

The first match of the season, with Lincoln, was lost by a score of $13\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$. Meeting Franklin in the second match, the team lost by a $14\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$ count. The Queen Anne match was won by the Indians, 12 to 6. The boys dropped the next match to Broadway to the tune of $14\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$. The latest match was dropped to Garfield, 10 to 8.

Ed Argersinger and Bob Thompson, four-year lettermen, had proven the most valuable men of the team, having scored respectively 12 and 8 points. Gordon McRae had also helped by garnering 5 points.

▲ ▲ ▲ the West Seattle track team finished in sixth place last season at the all-city meet, with Bill Kirk and Johnny Gilbert furnishing most of the opposition for the West Side cinder men.

The team this year is very green, and Coach Brinck predicts, at best, to gain fifth place. Gilbert is a sure point-getter in the hurdles, while Muller has a chance in the sprints. Chester Duckwitz runs a good half-mile with Clarke Gilbert, while Bemis may grab a few points in the mile. McClary and Webster handle the weights for the Redskins, with Rieke and Keller high jumping. Brown and Patterson are a pretty pair of pole-vaulters and have a couple of years left.

Johnny Gilbert, captain of this season's track team, is Coach Brinck's best bet. This is his fourth year on the track team, and this places him alongside of Thurlie Thornton and Fred Brandt, the only Indians to win four letters in a major sport at West Seattle.

Up to this writing, the Redskins have had only one meet. They tangled with Garfield, one of the strongest entries in the city, and came out second-best, 70-30. Johnny Gilbert was the mainstay for West Seattle, copping two first places.

As usual, the track team at West Seattle is not very strong because of the lack of material, but they have never met a team with more fight. Coach Brinck deserves the credit for this as he is out every night coaching. The Indians may pull a surprise and come closer than they expected, because Coach Brinck is known for his upsets.

« blue & gold » warrior club

Organized last year as a "pep" club, the Warriors have been called on to take other duties which they have performed in fine style. Patrolling during assemblies, helping stimulate school spirit by organizing rooting sections and managing tag sales, and patrolling the baseball diamond during games are counted among the activities of this group.

A skit in assembly during football season was another feature of the Warrior program.

An election of officers held during the first of the year resulted in New Richmond's being chosen president; Max Owsley, vice-president; Paul Duckwitz, secretary, and John Storey, treasurer. Later, Ned Richmond was forced to resign as president on account of other duties, and his position was filled by Max Owsley during the rest of the year.

This is the second year the Warrior Club has been organized, and under the able direction of Mr. Thorsett, sponsor, it has done much toward keeping student spirit at a high pitch.

▲ ▲ ▲ Cheerio! I'm a Cheeriette, believe it or not! Now you ask just what is a Cheeriette, I s'pose. Well, a Cheeriette Cheers! And she wears a cute yellow tam with blue trimmin's and a cane with a pom pom simply huge. And, do she yell? No less!

Why do she yell? Well, it all depends. First, she yells if our football, baseball, basketball, or what have you team is winning; and then if it's losing, she yells too! And she sings every time she happens to think of it—they all do.

There are about two hundred and fifty of 'em; they actually make a noise—they do too.

Mrs. Baeder, you know, is head of it, and the Cheeriettes actually mind her. 'Smarvelous. And we have the smartest rallies—n'everything.

Billie Biels, Glad Passage, Hopey Foster, and Marny Collins have the biggest pom poms, and they cheer lead 'cuz they're "Cheer Leaders."

An' the Cheeriettes who cheerioed at every football game got little cardboard footballs, and basketballs for every basketball game, and I guess they'll get baseballs too.

Anyway, all the really peppy girls up here belong—it's quite the rage to be a Cheeriette.

Cheerio Cheeriette!

« blue & gold » girls' "W" club

▲ ▲ ▲ The girls' "W" Club opened the year 1928-29 with only seven active members, but on October 25 eleven new members, including the coach, were initiated into the organization.

Officers for the first semester were Lorraine Donker, president; Genevieve Watson, vice president; Gertrude Barry, secretary.

The Girls' "W" Club was represented by several members at the annual week-end conference of the leaders of Girls' Athletics from all Seattle High Schools, which was held at the City's Play Ground Camp across Lake Washington, September 28.

There are at present five girls who have earned their first thousand points, and several members are working towards two thousand points.

On February 26 an important meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers for the second semester. Lorraine Donker and Genevieve Watson were re-elected, and Mary Dixon was elected secretary.

Members of the club then were:

prophecy
▼ ▼ ▼ ▼

Loud heralded by trumpeters of Youth and Hope,
Departs the good ship, Class of Nineteen Twenty-nine.
Her beams are stout, for each was hewn from out
A school that fosters mighty limbs and glorious hearts.
Her sails are gossamers of moonrays and the glint of stars;
They're woven from the highest dreams of maids and men.
A shield of blue and gold's a gleam upon her shining bow,
And pennants of the same fair colors
Dance and flaunt their glories to the rising sun.

We are the crew, a joyous throng, portraying Youth and Life,
Whose high ideals serve as our compass and our chart.
We fear no storms nor hidden reefs of woe;
We're off to claim dream castles in fair Spain.
With eyes agleam, and hearts aglow, we man the decks;
And this, our song, floats out to meet the dawn's first rosy rays:
"Our hearts are staunch, our hopes are high, our purpose is
To carry on the torch, and light the way
For those who follow in our paths of glory and of fame."

Beyond the harbor's safe retreat, I hear the breakers roar
And dash upon the shoals that bare their teeth and lie
In wait to wreck and spoil our ship of hope.
O, shipmates, keep your courage high, your faith undimmed,
Your hearts unsullied by false creeds of strife and hate.
Bold's the challenge flung to minds and hearts atune with life,
And rich the prize that waits us at our journey's end.
What seek we of the current's treacherous coil?
Our goal is set, our hearts are pure, adventure lies beyond.

We venture forth, we conquer fear, the winds blow fierce;
And still our ship plows on, and on, still bravely on.
The bar is crossed; wild breakers stretch their grisly arms
As if to snatch the weak into their watery tombs—
The wide sea lies before—in peace our ship
Plows through its depths, and sunny skies smile overhead.
The port is reached, our journey's o'er, this valiant band
Has weathered every gale, and honor comes to it
And to the school that gave its best that we might do and dare.

(These two essays by Mary Dean and Zoe Lund each won "Honorable Mention" in the annual nation-wide Scholastic Magazine contest. The two girls have been writing for some time, and they are to be congratulated on the wonderful showing they made in this contest.)

newspaper readers

One bangs the door decisively, steps out into the sharpish darkness—so different from the furry soft darkness of night—and hurries down the street, each footstep pecking distantly at the silence. Then the wait of perhaps two chill minutes at the corner, until the street car careens to a worried and jangling stop, and one is finally aboard.

Street cars are so necessarily ugly that they fail of impression after a certain mileage. The damply grimy floor, the harsh glare of electric lights over hideously distinct and unmergeable cards announcing the superior qualities of someone's macaroni and someone else's collars, the monotonous grime of everything—window panes, seats, even the leather straps that patiently endure the weight of every morning's yawning bookkeepers and depressed stenographers—it all strikes a numb spot. One no longer even dislikes it. But those who ride in street cars. The newspaper readers.

Quite oddly the newspaper has become part of the street car ride. One is a radical, an alien, a person whose automobile is being repaired, without his untidily folded newspaper under his arm or thrust in his pocket. Newspaper reading in the most cramped space and the most efficient manner has become an acquired ability in the space of one generation. Any typist or shop-girl with good eyesight and a suppressed desire for adventure along any line—preferably romantic—can read her newspaper calmly and concentratedly all the twenty suffocated blocks home.

A constant succession of jolting starts that urge her irresistibly forward to the stout man in the black overcoat who grips the strap just before hers and cataclysmic stops that jerk her from her insecure balance to a mumbled apology to the lady who spasmodically clutches the strap just ahead of hers do not distract her for more than two seconds from the last remnants of tortured description concerning the girl who eloped with the man of dark complexion and plentiful millions.

The timid looking man with pale eyes, conservative mouth, conservative hat, and conservative tie reads about Battling Hogan's training routine with a really alarming absorption. He may do something daring some day as a result of Battling Hogan's fascinating devil-may-careness. He may speak to the girl whom he has passed every morning for two years, except Sundays, without achieving a bow. A long time ago, in high school, some coarse little beast told him that his ears would discourage any girl; that and his original shyness have bitten so deeply that he has never been able to forget himself since, except when he reads about Battling Hogan. The truculent behavior of the Battler has become an unrecognized ambition. Some morning when he'll have been reading of Battling Hogan's latest exploits, and the clatter of heels on the sidewalk becomes, for an exhilarating moment, the very pretty girl of careless little hats and a red mouth, he will say brusquely, "Good morning!" and go on, triumphant, not to read again of Battling Hogan—at least not so tensely—until his daughter becomes difficult.

The girl with too much powder of the wrong shade over a faintly grimy skin lets her eyes scud over the account of how a pretty, popular girl of twenty-two has killed herself, no reason known, with a kind of horror, and relaxes over the details of a prize contest—a trip to Honolulu, first prize; a Ford sedan, second prize; but the eyes keep wandering back to the suicide column.

A drab old lady of rubbers, camphor, tightly rolled umbrella, and a puritan sternness about the eyes, reads, grotesquely, the comic sheet.

The newspapers crunch. They are folded forward. They are folded back. They return, untidily, to the pocket or under the arm. First Avenue next—

grey

The end of the week—Friday—and our last day there. End of a week of fun—hikes, swims, night fires, phosphorous—FUN!

I opened one eye to look at the day. There was a greyness about the sky and water that wasn't just the lastness. After a while I would get up. It was cold—I shut the eye and rolled more snugly in my covers.

There were shouts from the tent up east—Brud and Ernie and little Jacky were shouting for shoes and shirts and stockings that hid and for more pancakes and just shouting.

The gravel of the walk in front snuffled—little Bobby going past—lugging the water for the day.

There was a thuttering on the beach and a final plop—Chester was taking out the garbage boat.

Up from the point floated pebbles of laughter—careless—meaningless—a little gay. Tacoma was taking its morning dip. Tacoma was the family on the point—strangers—funny people.

I let the eye roll along the grey of the tent roof—taut and whimpering with the wind that had blown itself up over night—I started—something scattered down the canvas—a pine cone or a chipmunk—if I let the eye roll a little farther I could see Mother and Jinny—they were just humps in the other bed.

In a little while Mother would give a grey yawn and get up and we would have grey bread and old bacon for breakfast.

If I looked over my stomach with my chin down hard I could see out across the canal. Grey water—grey trees across the water—grey sky behind it all. Grey.

I let the eye roll over to Mother again—she was yawning—I wondered if she smelt the smoke from the tent up east—it was thick with the odor of pancakes. She put her head up a little. "Wanta swim before breakfast?" it was overflowing with the yawn.

"Huh-uh. No-o-o."

"Last chance."

I put my feet out in the cold—in a little while I was clear out—funny how warm the boards were underfoot. I paddled out on to the porch and snatched my grey bathing suit off the rail where it was supposed to be drying. I grubbled back and squirmed into the covers. "Huh-uh—suit's wet—'n besides it's too cold anyway—'n the raft got loose last night—no fun just swimmin'—wanta dive."

I was just beginning to see purple flakes—sleep—when the gravel snuffled again—I looked at Mother—she had just put her feet out of bed—I could see how she felt the cold. She gathered them back. "Darn—the sausage man."

I leaped from the covers and pranced into my clothes—I wanted to see the sausage man. I leaned over the porch rail—fat—just grey—gee.

I wandered back—then pounced on the hump that was Jinny. She rolled her eyes under the lids. Poor Jin! "C'mon—we gotta get some bark to take back."

She made me row up to the point and tried to tell me how to land—but I got the most wood and she rowed back. It was too rough and grey to go very fast.

I sat on the steps and watched Brud and Jinny carry up the wood—my foot hurt—dirty bandages.

Pretty soon Mother would start the car and we'd say good-bye and laugh and want to come again—but we wouldn't know how to say it—and the ride back would be grey—and dusty.

You never hear a bee complain
Nor hear it weep nor wail,
But if it wished it could unfold
A very painful tail.

Mr. Wohlrabe—When do the leaves begin to turn?

Joe Neylon—The night before exams.

Toby Thompson—Allow me to present my girl.

Don Northrop—Much obliged, but I have one.

Alvin Shaffer—"I never associate with my inferiors, do you?"

Beta Lenox—"I don't know. I never met any of your inferiors."

Sid Woody (in China, seeking telephone number)—"Hang it all. Fifty thousand Chinamen can't all be Wong!"

Leone LaPlante—"Where did you get that tie?"

Ted Abener—"O, haven't you heard this one before?"

"I'm layin' for that guy," said the hen as the farmer crossed the farmyard.

Mr. Morgan—Has your brother come home from college yet?

Fay Mills—I guess so, or else the car's been stolen.

Mr. Young—I've got a freak on my farm, a two legged calf.

Mr. Ballentine—I know. He came to call on my daughter last night.

Hope Foster—We've waited so many minutes for my mother.

Tommy O'Neil—Hours, you should say.

Hope Foster—Oh, Tommy, this is so sudden.
